A Thousand Tomorrows: Intimacy, Sexuality, and Alzheimer's and Sexuality, Intimacy and Dementia in the Residential Care Setting

These films follow people dealing with the issue of changes in intimacy as dementia causes changes in roles. These changes are often left unaddressed by professionals, family, and friends. Couples discuss from their experiences, how they learned to adapt, both in the home and in residential care settings

Discussion: Grief and loss, learning to redefine intimacy when sexual attraction and desire is diminished due to the caregiver's blurred roles and the care-receiver's ever-increasing dependency for care, normalizing human sexuality across the life spectrum

More than Words: A New Culture of Care and Communication with Persons Who are Living with Dementia and Other Age-Related Conditions

This video shows practical ways of identifying the underlying need behind a patient's challenging behavior and shows the process of evaluating adaptive approaches to meet those needs. This film shows actual dementia patients and care providers in residential care facilities and offers strategies that can be used anywhere, including in the home.

Discussion: Review of realistic expectations about behavior management, focus on behavior accommodation versus behavior modification, identifying environmental triggers, and learning where caregivers do and do not have control.
